The best time to visit the Char Dham pilgrimage depends on your preferences, health, and the experience you want

Summer

May and June

The most popular time for the Char Dham Yatra. The weather is pleasant and the roads are accessible. However, it can be crowded and expensive.

Late April to early July

The best conditions for the Char Dham pilgrimage. The temperature is warm and the roads are accessible.

Post-monsoon

September to October: A quieter time to visit with fewer crowds and beautiful surroundings. The weather is pleasant.

Winter

November: A peaceful time to visit, but the conditions are cooler.

Monsoon

June to September: Not a good time to visit due to the risk of landslides, floods, and helicopter service disruptions.

Other considerations

High altitude sickness

The risk of high altitude sickness is a lurking threat on the Char Dham Yatra.

Environmental degradation

The increase in pilgrimage numbers leads to overcrowding, environmental degradation, and the commercialization of sacred sites.

Wildlife disturbance

Winter traffic affects rare and threatened wildlife like snow leopards and mountain sheep.
